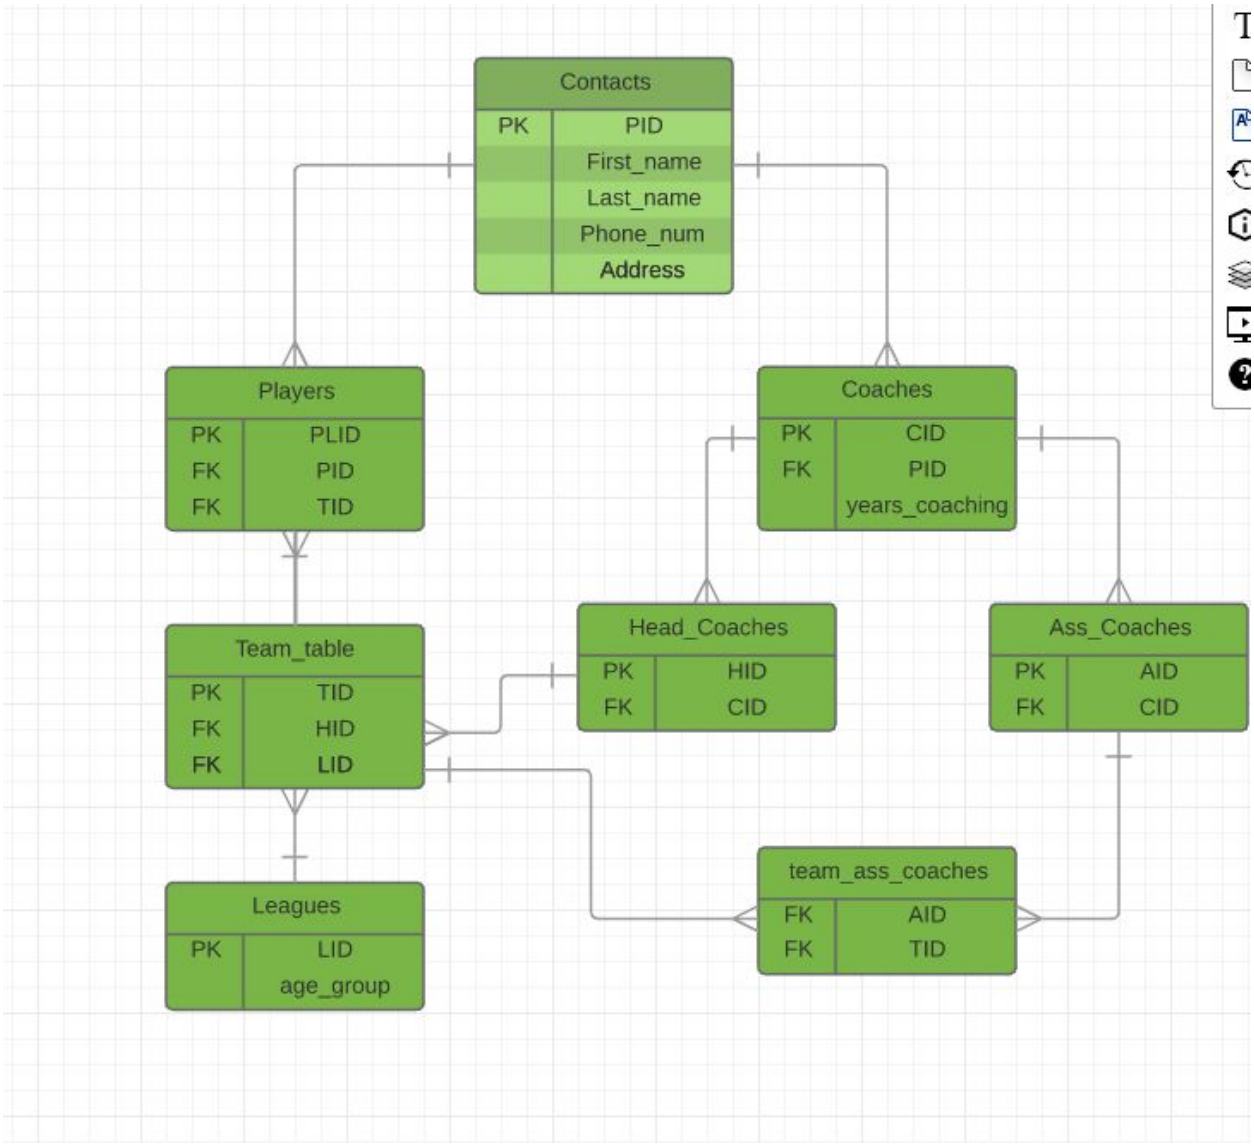
2.



3. This database is in 3rd normal form because every table has its own unique primary key used to identify every field in the table. Also, every field in the table describes the primary key field and nothing else. In addition to this, this database is also in first and second normal form because there are no repeating groups and there are no partial dependencies.